GREAT SUNDAY SCHOOL EVENT

Hawaii's Delegate to Convention in Rome and His Travels.

Rev. E. B. Turner, assistant pastor of Central Union church, and the representative of Hawaii to the recent World's Sunday School Convention at Rome, gave a most interesting account of his trip to Rome and the Holy Land, from Central Union pulpit last evening.

He first gave some account of the great Sunday school organizations of the United States and of the world, and of the work they are doing. The great opportunity and strength of the Sunday school was that it utilized the laymen. Therein was its great power. Going across the Atlantic he fell in with a man from Richmond, Virginia, who was at the head of a Sunday school of 1800 in that city; who brought 600 or 700 into the Sunday school every year; who made 200 visits a week among the pupils of his school. The Sunday school in its work developed and utilized experts, men and women with great capacity and power for work among children; for work among pupils of the intermediate classes; for work in Bible schools and Bible classes.

The work of Sunday schools engaged the interest and endeavor of many of the best business men of the country. Among the delegates to the convention at Rome were such men as H. J. Heinz, he of the 57 varieties, and E. J. Warner of Michigan, and Bishop Hartzell, one of the best known missionary bishops of the Methodist church.

In Boston the day before they sailed the delegates were tendered a reception by Lieutenant Governor Draper of Massachusetts, in the State House, and in the evening there was a great meeting at Tremont Temple.

They sailed April 27, stopping first at the Azores, where a Protestant minister was about to leave because money could not be raised for his salary, $250 a year. Under the inspiration of E. J. Warren this salary was provided for three years.

A stop was made at Gibraltar and at Algiers, where they caught their first glimpses of Mohammedanism and the degradation that is found in Moslem countries.

Through the Mediterranean Sea, which was the center of the ancient world, as the Atlantic is of the modern, and the Pacific will be of the future, they sailed through the wrecks of empires. Almost every spot recalled some great nation or empire or people that was but is no more.

They visited Naples and Pompeii, and some of them went to the place, not far from Naples, where St. Paul landed on the Italian shore. They visited Genoa, the birthplace of Columbus; Pisa, with its leaning tower, and thence to Rome, with its three hundred and sixty-five churches, one for every day in the year.

There are only 2000 Protestants among Rome's 300,000 people. The coming of the delegates was a great encouragement to them. It showed them, as well as it showed Rome, that Protestantism is united.

They visited the Church of St. John, Lateran, St. Peter's, they saw the Vatican with its 1100 rooms, the Pantheon, the prison where St. Paul was confined.

A session of the convention was held in the Coliseum. They visited the catacombs and the church of the Capuchins.

From Italy they went to the Holy Land, where every spot is a reminder of some incident in the Holy Scriptures. They went as far as Damascus, the place of Paul's conversion; they swam in the Sea of Galilee, where the Savior walked on the waters. They were at Nazareth and at Bethlehem, and spent six wonderful days at Jerusalem.
